Criteria not met in 2016 due to weather. 3 of 4 harvest criteria met in 2017 and all met in 2018. A steady decline in observed elk since shoulder seasons. Harvest weather-dependent and elk stay on inaccessible large ranches if it's nice. Shoulder season benefits smaller farms and ranches on the west which bear the brunt of too many elk. Most of those properties allow public access, but unless the weather pushes elk off the larger ranches they don't have much for elk during general season. A lot of elk will show up after the general season if the weather turns. Short season 1st 2 years.
